

Structural and pharmacological evidence differentiates candidate tractability

Experimental structural evidence and audited pharmacological maturity across the four focus genes.

Structural evidence indicates tractability, not efficacy. No docking or binding prediction was performed; a bound ATP analog or activity-based probe is not a therapeutic inhibitor.